The Value Analysis of the Basic Principles of Marxism to Contemporary Social Education

Yu WANG
China University of Political Science and Law

Abstract: At present, with the continuous development of China’s social economy, in order to meet the needs of the current social development, China has put forward a series of development strategies, and based on this, to promote the comprehensive development of China’s social economy. As a socialist country, our country always adheres to the advanced road of socialist development. As the basic theoretical support of socialism, Marxism affects the establishment and development of our socialist system. Marx’s basic principle is the support of China’s economic development, and also the foundation of all development theories and development thoughts of China’s socialist system. Therefore, in the process of practical work, in order to make our socialist system construction better, we must unswervingly adhere to the guidance of the basic principles of Marx, learn from it, adhere to it, and promote the effective development of our economy and politics.

Keywords: Marxism; Basic principles; Social education; Value

DOI: 10.47297/wspciWSP2516-252705.20200402

1. Introduction

The life of historical figures Marx and Engels is limited. However, Marx and Engels’ works are classic texts, whose value does not decrease with the passage of time. Their life values and thoughts can surpass their times because of the basic principles contained in their works. A real Marxist will never regard every word of Marx and Engels as the golden rule, nor expect Marxism as the only way to solve problems. Fundamentally speaking, the basic principles of Marxism have certain contemporary value and conform to the social reality of our country.

About the author: Yu WANG (1988-01), Female, Han nationality, Heilongjiang Province, Qiqihar City, ph.d candidate in China University of Political Science and Law, Research Interests: Basic Principles of Marxism.
2. The Connotation of Basic Principles of Marxism

(1) It is the omnibus of Marxist thought

As the basic principle of socialist social development, Marxism involves all aspects of social life, including politics, economy, culture and other fields. From the basic content of Marxism, we can see that Marxist thought is not a simple and basic generalization of philosophy, economics, politics and the development of socialist road. Its content is more extensive. It analyzes and discusses social development from different angles of society, which is practical and keeps pace with the times. The basic theory of Marxism is a high generalization of Marxist thought, is the essence of Marxist thought, and has a wide guiding role.

(2) It embodies the scientific nature of Marxism

From the point of view of real life, in the process of building socialism and promoting the development of socialist economy and society, China does not blindly adhere to the theory of Marxism without mistakes, but dialectically analyze and think about Marxist thoughts in the process of actual development, and combine them with practical problems efficiently, so as to solve the problems. Marxism is the correct reflection of the objective world, especially the history and law of human development. Marxism advocates finding truth from the objective world, testing truth from practice, developing truth from development, and developing truth from the objectivity of existence truth. It advocates starting from the essence of the world, looking for truth from the real world and objective things, so as to correctly grasp the objective laws of society. The basic principle of Marxism is the core content of Marxist thought, so it also has the scientific characteristics.

(3) It embodies the revolutionary nature of Marxist thought

Marxism originated from revolution and progressed in revolution. It is the guiding ideology of overthrowing the old system and establishing a new regime. It has a thorough nature of judgment. Its revolution is mainly reflected in the political position. The most fundamental significance of Marxist political position is to always adhere to and represent the fundamental interests of the people, and to establish the goal of struggle from the fundamental interests of the people. In the practice of proletarian revolution, Marx did not appear out of thin air, nor was it a theoretical representative of utopian socialism. It embodies the most basic interest requirements and has the most distinctive class nature and practicality. For their own liberation and development, the proletariat has carried out selfless and dedicated revolutionary struggle in the process of historical development, which is an inevitable requirement of historical development. Therefore, Marx’s basic principles embody revolution.
3. The Value of Marxist Basic Principles to Contemporary Social Education

(I) The basic principle of Marxism is the basic basis for the development of socialist economy

As a socialist country, China is also in the initial stage of development. This initial stage of development still needs a long time. This initial stage of development will take a long time. At this stage, we mainly adhere to the basic principles of Marxism, that is, we should not go astray and take it as the main basis of development to serve the people of the vast proletariat, which is our consistent goal. This principle is also the most revolutionary part of Marxist principle, which fully embodies its political position. Since the founding of the people’s Republic of China, our leaders have been discussing the direction of our country’s political and economic construction. In the process of reform and opening up, people and senior leaders of the Party have many doubts about the direction of China’s economic system construction. For example, many participants in social reform do not have enough understanding of the nature of social autonomy, have not made clear the relationship between planned economy and market economy, and mistakenly believe that socialism is the planned economy system and capitalism is the market economy system. In fact, Deng Xiaoping gave the most basic explanation to this issue in the South Talk in 1992. Socialism is not equal to planned economy; capitalism is not equal to market economy. In fact, in the process of China’s socialist economic development, we have effectively used the advantages of market economy to make up for the shortcomings of planned economy and promote the development of China’s socialist economic system. Therefore, in the process of continuous development of China’s socialist economic system, it is necessary for China to combine the invisible hand of market economy with the only hand of planned economy to realize mutual support and promotion and promote the development of China’s socialist economy. Therefore, in the process of China’s socialist economic development, we must adhere to the guidance of the basic principles of Marxism, look at China’s basic socialist national conditions from a scientific perspective, and find a suitable direction and road for the development of China’s socialist economic system on the basis of words, so as to promote the development and progress of China’s socialist economy.
The Value Analysis of the Basic Principles of Marxism to Contemporary Social Education

(2) The basic principle of Marxism is the ideological support for building a harmonious society

The justice of Marxism Leninism is mainly manifested in that it does not serve class or certain privileges, but only by persisting can true justice and democracy be realized. Modern democracy is mainly people-oriented, fair and just. It adheres to correctly handle the relationship between fairness and justice, adhere to the people-oriented, take improving the quality of people’s life as the center, take Marxist methodology as the guidance, and take solving the problems existing in the current socialist construction as the purpose to create a stable and harmonious social environment for the society. Under the impetus of reform and opening up, China’s economy has developed rapidly and stepped onto the stage of world development with a brand-new attitude. The imbalance of development caused by China’s rapid economic development, has brought many problems to the society. Building a socialist harmonious society with characteristics in our country is an important part of our socialist modernization and an important guarantee for the realization of national prosperity, democracy and people’s happiness. In order to succeed in the construction of our socialist harmonious society, we must realize the overall harmony between man and nature, man and society, man and man, which is a process in which the whole people participate. We should always adhere to the leadership of Marxism in the construction of socialism with Chinese characteristics and the unshakable basic belief of Marxism, which is the inexhaustible spiritual power for building a harmonious society.

(3) The basic principle of Marxism is the theoretical basis for the realization of the rule of law

Realizing and safeguarding the fundamental interests of the overwhelming majority of the people is the fundamental goal of the development of a socialist country. It requires our country to earnestly safeguard the interests of the people in the process of development, and all work must implement the concept of enforcing the law for the people. Therefore, we should fully understand the basic principles of Marxism, so as to truly manage the country in accordance with the law and achieve our own career goals on the road of the rule of law. Marx’s basic principle is the pursuit of a social ideal, an important guarantee for the realization of economic, political, cultural and social stability. Social progress is an inevitable requirement for reform and development. Guided by the basic principles of Marxism, we guide people to establish a correct concept of the legal system, and on this basis, to achieve the harmonious development of society, which can provide a solid dynamic support for the progress and development of society.
4. Conclusion

From the birth of Marxism to the present, it has guided many nationalities to develop socialist politics and realize national independence. It is the product of the combination of scientific revolution and revolution. Only by studying and mastering the basic principles of Marxism and using it to solve some specific problems in the construction of socialism with Chinese characteristics can we effectively promote socialist construction. In fact, our Party has continuously promoted the development of our country under the guidance of Marxist theory since its establishment. Marxism is the inevitable basis for the development of our socialist country. Only by continuously adhering to Marxist theory can we achieve sustained and stable development, lay a solid foundation for our country to fully realize a socialist country, play a guiding role in contemporary development, and enable our country to develop in an all-round way.

Works Cited:

